To the Editor of The Capital:

The above subject is now thrusting itself upon public attention, chiefly because of its connection with a case which affords some opportunity for sensational newspaper treatment. The occasion, however, also furnishes an opportunity for discussion of a very important public question. The "inside" law has been extensively advertised as the inauguration of a great reform. The writer, however, is convinced that this statute contains serious defects which complicate, if they do not destroy, its usefulness. The writer is designed to meet very special local remedy much to be desired; but the difficulty with the sake of whose interest is the writer, is its uncertainty. It is impossible to know what the law purports to do, what its regulation, or what its policy or intention. Such a statute is necessarily a dead one...

Topeka Capital, Aug. 11, 1913
Topeka Capital, Aug. 12, 1913:

DOLLEY GREATLY PLEASED OVER COURT'S DECISION

The decision of the courts yesterday in approving the constitutionality of the Kansas agricultural loan corporation act was very pleasing to J. N. Dickey, who was selected to take the case up before the high court. He said it was not only good for Kansans but good for the nation. He added that the law will allay the fears of other states and that it will encourage every bank and all banks and state banks and other banks to obey the law. The decision will not only help the banks but will help the nation.

Dickey said that the decision of the courts was a relief to him and to him personally. He said that the decision was a relief to the nation. He added that the law will allay the fears of other states and that it will encourage every bank and all banks and state banks and other banks to obey the law. The decision will not only help the banks but will help the nation.
BLUE SKY LAW IMPROVES MEETING THE NEED

Constitutionality has been determined in District Court and would be unwise to change, says Dolley.

It fits Kansas conditions.

With reference to efforts that are being made to improve the Kansas blue sky law, District Judge, L. N. Dolley, author of the present law, reiterates his opposition to the measures that have been proposed. He feels that the Kansas blue sky law has been well-constituted by the District Court of Shawnee Country, and that the legislature is best advised to do nothing to change it. The District Court has determined that the law is constitutional, and until the legislature, by an act of the 1915 legislature, makes any change, it is a wise thing to preserve the present law, which has been well-constituted by the District Court of Shawnee Country.

The law in question is the Kansas blue sky law that has been in effect for several years, and that, according to the District Court, is constitutional. The District Court has held that the law is constitutional, and until the legislature, by an act of the 1915 legislature, makes any change, it is a wise thing to preserve the present law, which has been well-constituted by the District Court of Shawnee Country.

The District Court has determined that the law is constitutional, and until the legislature, by an act of the 1915 legislature, makes any change, it is a wise thing to preserve the present law, which has been well-constituted by the District Court of Shawnee Country.
Organized Attack Threatens Defeat of Blue Sky Law

Enemies of Bill to Protect Investors From Designing Promoters Launch Fight for Life All Over Nation.

Base Law on Kansas Measure

Committee of Attorneys General Submits Proposed Court and Lawyer Proof Plan Drafted for Use in All States.

Topol Capital, Jan. 26, 1915

Organized attack threatens defeat of Blue Sky Law.

Following the Kansas blue sky law, the play is being made all over the United States. The state of J. N. Dolley, former chief of a bank commissioner, president of the National Blue Sky Association, and author of the blue sky law, the attack is being made on the Kansas law. The influence of the new fighting 'blue sky law in the state of Topeka,' Mr. Dolley said, 'long, hard, and difficult.' The purpose is to have the promoters whose business is that of making every effort to knock it out. And I have pretty good information that an attempt to amend it to an extent and kill the usefulness of the law may be made if this session of the legislature.

Some have adopted laws. Kansas has adopted the law and put it into force, some two dozen other states have passed similar laws, others are planning to.

When a committee of three state attorneys general finished drafting a blue sky law that ought to be the law of the land, and draft a plan, they found that a product based largely on the code of the Kansas state, the Kansas blue sky law, copies of the proposed law to be submitted to a number of state legislatures were received in Topeka yesterday.